

SEPA Newsletter (March 2015)

published on 13.02.2015

New guidance on the use of reason codes for SEPA direct debit transactions to be applied by BNP Paribas on the 2nd of March 2015.

Description

Some direct debit transactions need to be handled in exceptional ways because one of the parties involved does not or cannot process the collection in a normal way.

BNP Paribas gives you more information on this topic in the following newsletter:

Implementing SEPA is mandatory, but once its new system is up and running, corporates will be eager to take advantage of its full potential. It appears that their expectations vary considerably, depending on how they approached SEPA in the first place.

Unleashing the potential of SEPA

Paying Here & Abroad 01/09/2014

SEPA promised to turn Europe into a domestic market for cash management, and it is only a matter of time before it does. In order to unleash SEPA's full potential, SEPA-compliant corporations and public bodies should address a number of critical challenges; then -and only then- will SEPA foster a true framework for working capital innovation.

What corporates should know about SEPA

Paying Here & Abroad 04/02/2015

When looking at the European payment market from afar, corporates might wonder how SEPA (Single Euro Payments Area) can help their business and how they can leverage from it. As the #1 SEPA bank, we thought we might provide some focus and perspective to help make sense of it all.
